

Flake Floor

Product Information

Flake flooring, or Terraflake as it is better known in New Zealand, is a very popular floor finish for both residential and commercial settings where a durable, seamless and attractive finish is desired. The finish is also popular due to the wide range of colours which are fully customisable and because it is suitable for use in wet areas such as toilets and kitchens.

With a flake floor, a resin is laid on the floor and paint flake chips are set into the surface, which is then coated with a high strength sealer.

Coving can be added to areas along the base of walls to add to the floor already being great for wet and areas where hygiene is a top priority.

- Very hard wearing epoxy floor
- Customisable colouring
- Great in a residential setting or in commercial environments such as shop and restaurant floors
- Ideal for kitchens and wet areas
- Coving can be added to base of wall
